

A RESEARCH TO PRACTICE WEBINAR

Co-sponsored by the Institute for Healthy Living and Chronic Disease Prevention,
the Canadian Association of Psychosocial Oncology, and the North Okanagan Hospice Society

North Okanagan
Hospice Society

Relational practice and pandemic restrictions: A qualitative study of palliative care nursing

Presenters:

David Kenneth Wright PhD, RN, CHPCN(C)

Associate Professor, School of Nursing, University of Ottawa;

Academic Lead, Palliative Care and Nursing Ethics Hub, Centre for Research on Health and Nursing;

Director at Large—Research, Canadian Hospice Palliative Care Nurses Group

Kim McMillan PhD, RN, CHPCN(C)

Assistant Professor, School of Nursing, University of Ottawa;

Academic Mentor, Palliative Care and Nursing Ethics Hub, Centre for Research on Health and Nursing

Abstract: For patients with progressive, life-limiting illnesses and their families, physical distancing measures – and the resultant social isolation they produce – are at odds with the central role of social connection in palliative care. This disconnect was our starting point for an ongoing interview study with Canadian nurses, about the ethical issues they are facing when providing palliative care during COVID-19. This presentation will present emerging findings from this study, to explore the ways in which relational practice is supported or thwarted in the current pandemic context.

Tuesday, January 19, 2021, 10:00 —11:00 am PST

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

EVERYONE IS WELCOME

Attend via Zoom webinar. Please REGISTER at: <https://bit.ly/385Lly0>

THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Institute for Healthy Living and Chronic Disease Prevention

Room 223 Arts Building
1147 Research Road | UBC Okanagan
Kelowna BC V1V 1V7

e: healthyliving.research@ubc.ca

w: <http://ihlcdp.ok.ubc.ca>

We tweet regularly about the research activities and projects of our Associates,
and about Institute events.

Follow us on Twitter

@IHLCDP